

Join us March 10 for our
“Almost Spring” concert with

Lui Collins

Dana & Susan Robinson

Western Massachusetts' own long time favorite Lui Collins will share the stage with former New Englanders Dana & Susan Robinson for this special double bill reunion concert. Because Dana & Susan now call Asheville, North Carolina home and spend most of their lives on tour all across America, this reunion evening will be a special treat for the performers as well as for the audience.

Lui Collins' gorgeously poetic lyrics are wrapped around a solid bed of traditional and old-timey-influenced music with well honed acoustic guitar and banjo arrangements. She has been performing, writing and recording for over 35 years, earning international acclaim for her music. The Boston Globe calls Lui Collins “one of New England’s first and brightest stars”.

Lui Collins' concerts are intimate affairs. She interlaces her songs with stories about their background, her life, the weather - like a conversation with an old friend...with music.

Dana and Susan Robinson describe themselves as two guitar-playing, banjo-frailing, fiddle-sawing, and harmony-singing interpreters of the American experience. With Dana on guitar and fiddle, Susan's clawhammer banjo playing and harmony singing they bring a joyful energy to their concerts.

Their unique blend of contemporary songwriting and traditional Appalachian music bring to their performances a deep understanding of Americas musical heritage. Their music is the sound and feel of bedrock America. In live concert, they can make the audience howl with laughter or hush with poignant reflection as they take them on a journey across America and convey the mystery and wonder of the places they visit.
